

Market review

As so often seems to be the case, investors returning from Summer holidays found plenty to worry about. An energy crisis, blockages in global supply chains, a slowdown in China and growing inflationary pressures were just some of the things to ponder. Rising energy and commodity prices, increased shipping costs (which have gone up tenfold in the space of a year) and labour shortages fed through to staple products, with global food prices hitting a ten-year high. Bond yields rose as some Central Bankers switched from dovish to hawkish mode. If there was good news to be found, it was that, for the first time in many months, Covid-19 was not the dominant factor influencing equity markets. Vaccination rates continued to increase in many countries and hospitalisation cases did not overwhelm healthcare systems.

While many developed market indices were flat over the quarter – September’s worries eroding the gains of the earlier Summer months – it was a good period for European SmallCap, which held its ground and continued to outperform its LargeCap counterpart. While our strategies enjoyed a quarter of healthy outperformance, inflationary pressures contributed to a sell-off of Growth stocks relative to Value towards the end of the period.

Portfolio

During the quarter, the NAV of the Trust increased by 12%, an outperformance of 10% relative to the MSCI Europe SmallCap (ex UK) Index.

The strongest contribution during the quarter came from NCAB, the full-service supplier of PCBs, which rose after announcing the acquisition of RedBoard Circuits in the US. Sartorius Stedim Biotech, the supplier of equipment used to manufacture biologic drugs, performed strongly as countries become increasingly receptive to Covid booster vaccinations. Vitrolife, the provider of tools to IVF clinics, performed well as Analysts priced in expected growth from their major recent genomics acquisition.

The weakest contribution came from MTU, the aircraft engine system supplier, which traded down as international travel levels remained subdued. ATOSS Software, the leading provider of workforce management solutions in the DACH region, drifted despite solid results as the share price paused for breath following a strong run. Atea, the leading Nordic IT reseller and consultant, saw its share price correct after a sharp appreciation in Q2, following in-line earnings results.

Outlook

The fizz appears to have gone out of equity markets. While September and October have historically been tricky months for investors, a period of consolidation may be no bad thing. Equity investors, who have had plenty to cheer about in recent years, are sitting on double-digit gains in most developed markets so far in 2021.

As we write these lines, the style rotation into Low Quality and Value is intensifying. The current environment reminds us of the price action seen in the weeks that followed the announcement of the Pfizer vaccine in November 2020, albeit the rotation is not as dramatic. Fortunately, these periods tend to be short-lived. We will keep our heads down and carry on investing in the same way as always – with our “Quality Growth”, Buy & Hold hats firmly on.

The views expressed in this article are those of the author at the date of publication and not necessarily those of Montanaro Asset Management Ltd. The information contained in this document is intended for the use of professional and institutional investors only. It is for background purposes only, is not to be relied upon by any recipient, and is subject to material updating, revision and amendment and no representation or warranty, express or implied, is made, and no liability whatsoever is accepted in relation thereto. This memorandum does not constitute investment advice, offer, invitation, solicitation, or recommendation to issue, acquire, sell or arrange any transaction in any securities. References to the outlook for markets are intended simply to help investors with their thinking about markets and the multiple possible outcomes. Investors should always consult their advisers before investing. The information and opinions contained in this article are subject to change without notice.