

Montanaro MidCap FundQuarterly Commentary – Q4 2022

Market review

As the global pandemic of Covid-19 eased, some commentators suggested an economic boom was on the cards. Freed from lockdown, the world was ready to party: “Goodbye virus...hello Roaring Twenties” screamed one hopeful article in the Financial Times. You only had to look back a century to the boom that followed the 1918 pandemic (Spanish Flu) to see what would follow: a hedonistic decade of economic growth and stock market excess spurred by technological innovation (the car and the radio); *“the illicit thrill of Prohibition moonshine and the un-girdling of women”*¹. London had its “Bright Young Things”, New York the Jazz Age of The Great Gatsby.

While economic growth initially rebounded faster from the impact of Covid than many had expected, 2022 brought surprises that derailed this trajectory. The first war in Europe since the Second World War brought with it rising oil prices and inflation unseen in a generation. The era of easy money came to an abrupt halt. The mood music changed. It was as brutal a start to a year as we can remember.

Our Funds recorded one of the worst months ever in relative terms in January 2022. The reason for this was a dramatic style rotation from Growth to Value, one of the fastest that we have witnessed in over 30 years of managing Small & MidCap portfolios. The swift change in sentiment was due to a burst of global inflation, which stoked fears of interest rate rises and disproportionately hurt long duration assets, notably Growth Small & MidCap equities.

The year did not get much better for Quality Growth managers as recessionary fears mounted. Exacerbated by the dreadful war in Ukraine, investors sought refuge in larger companies. The result was our worst year looking after investments for our clients since 2008 on an absolute basis and our worst relative year since the Eurozone crisis of 2013. Usually, our Portfolios hold up well in market downturns due to their high quality. Not so this time. The rotation out of SmallCap, Quality and Growth was a “perfect storm”.

Portfolio

During the quarter, the NAV of the share class gained by 6% in Euro terms, an underperformance of 5% versus the Stoxx Europe Mid 200 index. It was a difficult year for the Fund as told by the final numbers for 2022: a decline in value of 28% and an underperformance of 7%. It is worth briefly noting how lopsided this underperformance was, with much of it occurring in the opening months of the year. Indeed, over the last six months the Fund has outperformed by 1%.

¹ “The need for a damned good party”, Financial Times, 1 January 2021

The strongest contribution during the quarter came from MTU Aero Engines, a German engine manufacturer, which continued to perform on the back of air traffic recovery and confirmation of long-term guidance. Amundi, a leading European asset manager, rallied strongly in Q4 on the back of a strong asset management sector rebound. Bachem, a leading global CDMO for peptide drugs, saw its shares perform well following two large order volume contract wins.

The weakest contribution came from Teleperformance, a leading global call centre and business process outsourcing provider, which was accused of poor labour practices in Colombia. We engaged closely on this ESG matter. Worldline, Europe's largest payments processor, saw its shares derate as Q3 results suggested an expected slowdown in consumer spending growth from Q4 onwards. RS Group, a leading distributor of electronic and industrial components for the R&M market, was impacted by the surprise departure of its well-regarded CEO.

Outlook

How to think about the months ahead from an investment perspective? Perhaps like the Aymara Tribe in South America, we should walk backwards into the future. In their culture, the most important feature of time is what we know: *“we can see the present and the past; they are laid out before us...anything we know or believe about the future is based on inference from what we have experienced in the present or the past...when making plans for the future, we should take much the same attitude as if we were walking backwards into unknown terrain”*². As an investment house founded by an anthropologist, we find such a philosophy appealing.

With this in mind, what do we know and how can this inform our thinking? Many P/E valuations halved in 2022 and are back to 2016 levels or even 2008. Equity value is more attractive in our Quality Growth segment of the market than it has been for years. We also know that inflation dramatically rose last year but appears to have peaked last June. The US consumer price index declined in each of the last six months, while European inflation eased more than expected in November. This suggests that monetary policy may be having the desired effect. If this trend continues, central bankers may refrain from further tightening.

We also know that economic growth has slowed, with some regions entering into recession. In such an environment, it is likely that the earnings of equity markets will decline this year. And here comes the nub of our outlook: in such an environment, the well capitalised Quality companies in which we invest should deliver better earnings growth than the wider market. As we walk (backwards) into the future, we can have confidence in the resilience of our companies and that, after a very difficult year, they are well placed to deliver attractive returns to our investors over the long term as they have in the past.

² What We Owe The Future, William Macaskill

The views expressed in this article are those of the author at the date of publication and not necessarily those of Montanaro Asset Management Ltd. The information contained in this document is intended for the use of professional and institutional investors only. It is for background purposes only, is not to be relied upon by any recipient, and is subject to material updating, revision and amendment and no representation or warranty, express or implied, is made, and no liability whatsoever is accepted in relation thereto. This memorandum does not constitute investment advice, offer, invitation, solicitation, or recommendation to issue, acquire, sell or arrange any transaction in any securities. References to the outlook for markets are intended simply to help investors with their thinking about markets and the multiple possible outcomes. Investors should always consult their advisers before investing. The information and opinions contained in this article are subject to change without notice.